

BONUS 3 OF 6

Sales & Promotion Guide.

Exactly what to post on WhatsApp, Instagram and Facebook — with real captions and story ideas — to land your first orders without feeling salesy.

-  The 3-post launch sequence that gets your first orders
-  Ready-to-use WhatsApp status & DM scripts
-  Instagram & Facebook caption templates
-  How to turn one happy customer into five more
-  A simple weekly posting rhythm you can actually keep up

Contents

You don't need to be "good at marketing" — you need a simple sequence you repeat. This is that sequence.

Introduction · You already have an audience	3
1 · The 3-post launch sequence	4
2 · WhatsApp status & DM scripts	6
3 · Instagram & Facebook captions	7
4 · Turning one customer into five	9
5 · A weekly posting rhythm	10
6 · Your promotion checklist	11

Introduction • You already have an audience

"You don't need thousands of followers. You need the 150-300 people who already know you — your contacts, your neighbors, your school parent group — to see something worth sharing, once."

Most first-time capsule sellers overthink promotion because they picture it as running ads, building a brand, growing a following. None of that is required to land your first 10-20 orders. What works instead is showing something genuinely eye-catching (the capsule dissolving in hot milk is naturally "scroll-stopping") to the people who already trust you.

✓ Why this product sells itself. A chocolate capsule that transforms into a cappuccino is a visual novelty — the moment it melts in hot milk is inherently shareable. Your job isn't to convince people it's good; it's to show them the moment and let curiosity do the rest.

The 3-post launch sequence

Post these three things, in this order, over 3-5 days, and you will get your first inquiries.

Post 1 • The reveal (WhatsApp status + Instagram Story)

A close-up photo or short video of the capsules on a wooden board or plate, chocolate shells shining. No sales pitch — just "Made something new this week 🧐☕" or similar. Curiosity, not a pitch.

Post 2 • The transformation (the moment that sells)

A video (10-15 seconds) of the capsule dropping into hot milk and dissolving into a creamy cappuccino. This is your single best-performing piece of content — it should also become your main Ad-style post later. Caption: "Drop it in hot milk and watch what happens ☕✨"

Post 3 • The offer

Now show the finished kit/gift box with a clear, simple call to action: flavors available, how to order, and a light urgency element ("First 10 orders this week get a free extra capsule"). This is the only post of the three that mentions price or ordering.

Why the order matters. Leading with the offer before the curiosity builds feels like an ad and gets scrolled past. Leading with the reveal and the transformation earns attention first — the offer lands on people who are already interested.

SECTION 2 OF 6

WhatsApp status & DM scripts

WhatsApp status updates and direct one-on-one messages, worded exactly as you can send them.

STATUS UPDATE — REVEAL

"New this week 🧐 Artisan cappuccino capsules — chocolate shells that melt into a real cappuccino in hot milk. Trying flavors on close friends first 😊"

STATUS UPDATE — THE OFFER

"Cappuccino Capsule Kits are open for orders 📦☕ 6 flavors, 12-piece gift box, ready this weekend. Message me to reserve yours — first 10 orders get a bonus flavor free."

DIRECT MESSAGE — TO SOMEONE WHO REACTED TO YOUR STATUS

"Hey! Saw you checked out my capsules 😊 They come in kits of 6 or 12 — great for gifting too. Want me to send you the flavor list and prices?"

DIRECT MESSAGE — FOLLOWING UP AFTER A "MAYBE LATER"

"No rush at all! Just wanted to mention I'm doing a small batch this weekend if you want to grab one before they're gone — totally fine if not 😊"

⚠️ Never pressure. A gentle, no-pressure tone consistently outperforms urgency tactics with people who know you personally — they're buying from you specifically, so keep the relationship warm above the sale.

SECTION 3 OF 6

Instagram & Facebook captions

Ready-to-post captions for feed posts and Reels — adjust the flavor names and price to your own kits.

REEL/VIDEO CAPTION — THE TRANSFORMATION

"Drop. Melt. Sip. ☕🍫

Artisan Cappuccino Capsules — real chocolate shells filled with flavored cappuccino, made by hand in small batches.

DM me "CAPSULE" to see this week's flavors 📌 "

FEED POST CAPTION — FLAVOR SPOTLIGHT

"Flavor of the week: Dulce de Leche 🍮 Creamy, rich, and honestly dangerous around the third cup. Which flavor should I do next — comment below 📌 "

FEED POST CAPTION — GIFT KIT

"Looking for a gift that's actually different this time? 🎁 12-piece Cappuccino Capsule Gift Kit, 6 flavors, ready in 2 days. Perfect for birthdays, thank-yous, or just because. Link in bio / DM to order."

FACEBOOK LOCAL GROUP POST

"Hi neighbors! 🙌 I make artisan cappuccino capsules — little chocolate bombs that turn into a real cappuccino when you drop them in hot milk. Taking local orders this week, pickup available. Happy to answer questions here!"

Hashtag tip. Use 5-8 specific tags mixing your local area with the product niche: #cappuccinocapsules #chocolatelover #[yourcity]smallbusiness #giftideas #homemadechocolate — broad generic tags like #food or #yummy get buried and rarely help a small local seller.

Turning one customer into five

Referrals are the highest-converting sales channel for a home-based product. Here's how to earn them without feeling awkward about it.

- Ask at the right moment. Right after a customer tells you they (or their gift recipient) loved it — "So glad! If you know anyone else who'd love these, I'd really appreciate the referral 🧡"
 - Give them something to share. Send a short, nicely formatted photo/video they can forward to friends — most people won't write their own post, but will happily forward yours.
 - Small referral thank-you. A free single capsule for every referred order that converts costs you under a dollar and reliably increases word-of-mouth.
 - Tag & repost. If a customer posts about their kit, ask permission to repost it — real customer photos convert better than your own product shots.
- ✓ The compounding effect. A single happy customer who refers just 1-2 people a month, repeated across your first 15-20 customers, is how sellers realistically get from "sold to friends" to the volume in the Bonus 1 income tables — without ever running a paid ad.

SECTION 5 OF 6

A weekly posting rhythm

A simple, repeatable schedule — not a full-time social media job.

DAY	WHAT TO POST	WHERE
Monday	Flavor spotlight of the week	Instagram feed + WhatsApp status
Wednesday	Behind-the-scenes making the capsules	Instagram/Facebook Story
Friday	The transformation video (melt in hot milk)	Reel + WhatsApp status
Saturday	Weekend order reminder / kit availability	WhatsApp status + local Facebook group

Four short posts a week, reused and lightly varied, is enough to stay visible without it becoming a burden. Batch-shoot photos/video on the day you make a fresh batch, then space the posts out across the week.

Your promotion checklist

Run through this before your first launch week.

Before you post your first launch sequence

- | | |
|---|-----------|
| ☐ Filmed the "drop in hot milk" transformation clip | Section 1 |
| ☐ Posted the reveal (no sales pitch) | Section 1 |
| ☐ Posted the transformation video | Section 1 |
| ☐ Posted the offer with a light first-week incentive | Section 1 |
| ☐ Sent 5-10 personal DMs to warm contacts | Section 2 |

Ready to launch

✓ Congratulations. You now have the exact words and sequence to land your first orders. Next: Bonus 4 · Basic Starter Materials, so you know exactly what to buy before your first batch.

Your first orders are closer than you think.

You now have the exact posts, scripts and rhythm to turn the people who already know you into your first paying customers.

Next step

Open Bonus 4 · Basic Starter Materials to build your shopping list before your first batch.

© Artisan Cappuccino Capsules · For personal training use. Not for resale or redistribution.