BONUS 1

Building your supply list

Start small, spend under $60 on your first kit, and scale up only once you have real orders to fill.

You don't need a wholesale account to make your first cap. You need one good cone of cotton, one hook, and the patience to make one full cap before you buy anything else.

Starter kit — everything for your first cap collection

ITEM	WHERE TO LOOK	APPROX. COST
Worsted/DK cotton yarn (2–3 colors)	Local craft store or online (search "worsted cotton yarn cone")	$18–28
4.0mm & 3.5mm hooks	Any craft store — buy a small ergonomic hook set	$8–12
Stitch markers, yarn needle	Bundled kits are cheapest	$5–8
Plastic canvas sheet or fusible interfacing	Craft store sewing section	$4–6
Small beads, tassel cord	Jewelry-making aisle or bead shop	$5–10

✓ TOTAL STARTER SPEND

Roughly $40–65 for enough materials to make 3–5 full caps, depending on the pattern and yarn weight you choose. Make your first sale before spending more.

Once you're selling regularly — moving to wholesale

When you're making more than 4–5 caps a month, per-skein retail pricing starts eating into your margin. At that point, look for:

- Cone yarn suppliers — cotton yarn sold by the pound/kg on cones is 30–50% cheaper per yard than retail skeins. Search "cotton cone yarn wholesale" plus your country.
- Craft co-ops or guild bulk buys — many local crochet/knit guilds run group orders; joining one can unlock wholesale pricing without a business account.
- Findings in bulk — beads, keyring hardware, and alligator clips are dramatically cheaper bought in packs of 50–100 once you're making the bonus mini-patterns regularly.

⚠ WHAT TO AVOID

Skip acrylic yarn for anything that touches the face directly (visor lining) — it doesn't breathe the way cotton does and can feel uncomfortable in warm weather, which is exactly when caps get worn most. Also avoid buying a full wholesale cone before you've confirmed you like working with that specific yarn's weight and twist — order one skein first.

Color planning

Buy your first 2–3 colors based on what sells fastest in your local market or online audience — neutral tones (cream, tan, sage) tend to move first because they pair with more outfits, while bold seasonal colors (sunflower gold, rust) work best as limited runs tied to a season.
